Aims

Current Research in Law & Practice (ISSN: 2959-3654) is an international open-access academic journal, published by Brilliance Publishing Limited, dedicated to advancing global legal scholarship. The journal provides an academic forum for legal scholars, practitioners, and researchers to publish significant studies, exchange innovative perspectives, and contribute to the ongoing progress of the legal discipline.

Adopting an interdisciplinary outlook, the journal embraces submissions that explore the interaction of law with economics, sociology, political science, technology, and other related areas, thereby broadening the understanding of contemporary legal issues. With a focus on practical significance, it encourages contributions that link theory with practice, offering insights valuable to legal professionals, policymakers, and stakeholders. In addition, the journal promotes global perspectives, welcoming research that reflects cultural, regional, and international diversity, and aims to foster dialogue across jurisdictions.

Subjects Areas

- Legal Theory and Philosophy
- Constitutional Law
- Criminal Law and Justice
- International Law
- Corporate and Commercial Law
- Human Rights Law
- Environmental Law
- Legal Technology and Innovation
- Legal Ethics and Professional Responsibility
